It also describes your rights to access and control your PHI. PHI about you is maintained as a written and/or electronic record. Specifically, it individually identifies you and relates to (1) your past, present, or future physical or mental health; (2) related healthcare services; or (3) your past, present or future payment for your healthcare.

FPTW is required by law to maintain the privacy of your health information and provide you with a copy of this notice. We are required to abide by the terms of this notice. We reserve the right to change the terms of this notice, and make the revised or changed notice effective for all health information that we maintain. Any changes to this notice will be posted in our facilities and on our website. Paper copies will be available upon request.

HOW WE MAY USE AND DISCLOSE PROTECTED HEALTH INFORMATION ABOUT YOU:

For Treatment. We may use health information about you to provide, coordinate or manage your healthcare and related services.

We may disclose health information about you to your doctor, staff or others who are involved in taking care of you and your health. For example, your doctor may be treating you for a heart condition, which we may need to know about to determine the best plan of care.

For Payment. We may use and disclose health information, as needed, about you so the treatment and services you receive may be billed, and payment may be collected from you, an insurance company or a third party. For example, this may include certain activities that your health insurance plan may undertake before it approves or pays for the healthcare services we recommend for you, such as making a determination of eligibility or coverage of health benefits.

Healthcare Operations. We may use or disclose, as-needed, your protected health information for our day-to-day health care operations to ensure that you and other patients receive quality care. For example, we may use or disclose PHI relating to the evaluation of patient care, business management activities, quality assessment and improvement, employee reviews, legal services, and auditing functions. All disclosures of your PHI will be limited to the minimum necessary or that which is contained in a limited data set (e.g. PHI that excludes certain identifiers including demographic information, photographs, et cetera).

OTHER ALLOWABLE USES OR DISCLOSURES OF YOUR PROTECTED HEALTH INFORMATION:

Required by Law. We may use or disclose your health information when required to do so by federal or state law. We must also disclose your protected health information when required by the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services to investigate or determine our compliance with requirements under the Privacy Rule.

Public Health Risks. We may release your health information for public health activities. For example, disclosures related to the quality, safety or effectiveness of a product, prevention or disease control, to coroners, medical examiners and funeral directors as needed to perform their duties as required by law, and organ procurement organizations for the purpose of facilitating organ, eye or tissue donation and transplantation.

Victims of Abuse, Neglect or Violence. We may disclose your information to a government authority authorized by law to receive reports of abuse, neglect or violence relating to children or the elderly.

Health Oversight Activities. We may disclose your health information to health agencies authorized by law to conduct audits, investigations, inspections, licensure and other proceedings related to oversight of government regulatory programs.

Judicial and Administrative Proceedings. We may disclose your health information in the course of an administrative or judicial proceeding in response to a court order. Under most circumstances, when the request is made through a subpoena, a discovery request, or involves another type of administrative order, your authorization will be obtained before disclosure is permitted.

Research. Your health information may be used for research purposes in certain circumstances with your permission, or after we receive approval from a special review board whose members review and approve the research project.

To Avert a Serious Threat to Health or Safety. We may disclose your health information when necessary to prevent a serious threat to your health and safety, or the health and safety of a particular person or the general public.

Specialized Government Functions. We may disclose health information for military and veterans' affairs, or national security and intelligence activities.

Worker's Compensation. Both state and federal law allow, without your authorization, the disclosure of your health information that is reasonably related to a worker's compensation injury. These programs may provide benefits for work-related injuries or illness.

Others Involved in Your Healthcare. Unless you object, we may disclose to a family member, relative or close friend your PHI that directly relates to that person's involvement in your care. If you have a personal representative, such as a legal guardian (or an executor or administrator of your estate after your death), we will treat that person as if that person is you with respect to disclosures of PHI.

Business Associates. We may disclose PHI to our business associates who perform functions on our behalf or provide us services if the PHI is necessary for those functions or services.
